

High flyers

French firm La Compagnie took off in June last year with the astute concept of offering Business Class-only flights. Its 74-seat 757-200 flies from Paris to New York and, as of this year, London.

Hotel Henriette

Paris
Former fashion editor Vanessa Scoffier swapped clothes for furniture when she opened this renovated hotel in Paris's 13th arrondissement. Named after her father Henri, the 32-room hotel's smart execution is unfussy and filled with Nordic design nods. Expect fresh flowers in your room, a crisp croissant on your plate and bright, airy rooms. — DHZ

Notarishuys hotel Diksmuide, Belgium

A stone's throw from the Belgian seaside, the city of Diksmuide is a fitting setting for the intimate Notarishuys seafood restaurant and Pure Hotel. Owners Bert Boussemaere and Jessica Seys have a simple approach to hospitality. "We want to go back to the essentials," says Boussemaere. "In the kitchen as well as in the decor and ambience of our four hotel rooms." — DEP

Ryogoku Terrace Tokyo

On the banks of the Sumida River by Kokugikan Sumo Stadium sits Ryogoku Terrace, Tokyo's newest running station and attached selection of athlete-friendly restaurants. The running facility has lockers, showers and a head-to-toe rental service offering everything from kit to shoes and towels.

Once geared up you can explore the neighbourhood or opt for a 60 or 90-minute group session. If you're peckish there is a choice of restaurants offering healthy menus supervised by a sports-nutrition specialist from the National Institute of Fitness and Sports in Kanoya. — JT
